

CONTROLLING CARP - FISHING FOR SOLUTIONS TO PROTECT AUSTRALIA'S AQUATIC ENVIRONMENT

Australia is faced with one of the world's most invasive aquatic species – the Common Carp – and controlling them may impact heavily on the ornamental fish industry. Tackling these freshwater bottom-feeding pests is not an easy task, as several proposed solutions are up for debate. Caroline Zambrano investigates.